For the Alternative Media Assignment, you have two choices:

- Revise one of your papers into a new medium.
- Create a document that is not a paper about a controversy in your field.

Examples of alternative media include (but are not limited to) Powerpoints or prezis, videos, live performances (songs, speeches, dramatic interpretations, dances), photographic montages, collages, paintings, sculptures, brochures, and/or lab experiments that re-interpret your literacy narrative, the annotated bibliography, the writing in the major paper, or the rhetorical analysis. That is, present one of these papers in a new medium, a new format other than a paper.

For the second option, create a presentation (using similar media as above) to explain or illustrate a controversy in your field.

On the final exam day, you will present this assignment in class, explaining (1) what you did, (2) why you chose to do what you did, and (3) which media works better at conveying your point and why.

You also have the option of presenting this assignment at the Celebration of Student Writing in the spring semester.