For your final assignment, you will be completing a collaborative digital media project that will require you to work with a group to create a presentation that includes a digital or multi-modal component. You will be presenting these projects during the final week of class.

This project will include information you have compiled over the semester about your topic from your major. If there are gaps in your research or argument surrounding your topic, you should complete more research. While this project must relate to the individual topics you have been working with all semester, you have two options:

1. Arrange a group of members with similar majors or topics and locate a local social issue that involves everyone’s topic in some way. In your presentation, you will discuss how your individual topic relates to this social issue, and how all of the group’s topics collaborate in a manner that may address the problem. You will also propose a solution and action plan as a group that involves all of the members’ individual topics. You may also choose to complete this option with a group of members with seemingly unrelated majors and topics.

2. As a group, present on the literacy you have gained about your individual topics that you have been working with all semester. Each member should present on what they have learned about their topic, and how this information will serve them as they continue on in their major or as a professional in their field. You should aim to teach the class about your topic, the information you have gathered, and the social importance of this topic. As a group, you should look for patterns that allow you to discuss the similarities and differences between your individual topics and learning experiences. You should then devise an organization and presentational strategy that incorporates individual topics in a collaborative and cohesive manner.

Choose a format and collaboratively create a detailed and organized work plan, which you should turn in to me on the day your group presents. You should document sources for the final presentation in the style of your choosing. This documentation should be part of your presentation and work plan.

You will also submit an individual reflective assignment in your final portfolio, titled Collaborative Digital Media Project Reflection. This assignment should include a summary of the project, your contribution to the project, a comparison of how your individual topic and learning experiences are similar to and different from that of your group members, and what you learned about your topic and major from this project.
