Engaging Food Politics in the Writing Classroom

Through her scholarship and teaching, Dr. Schell has developed a set of assignments and strategies for helping students research, write, and develop a critical literacy about carried aspects of agriculture and the food system. In this workshop, Dr. Schell will ask participants to consider their own questions about food and farming and then move outward to discussing potential approaches toward developing a course, set of writing assignments, or even just a daily classroom activity that takes up some aspect of food and farming. Dr. Schell will also share materials and readings she has developed and student projects that have resulted from these writing courses. A set of PDFs of suggested readings will be made available in advance of the workshop through the WAC website at wac.appstate.edu.

If you have any questions or would like more information contact C.C. Hendricks at Hendrickscr@email.appstate.edu.

Sponsored by: the Writing Across the Curriculum Program, University College, the Rhetoric and Composition Program, and the Department of English